Investment Strategy

The Payden Global Low Duration Fund seeks to benefit from the opportunities available through broadening the investment universe to include issuers and currencies outside of the U.S. while avoiding the volatility of longer-maturity bond funds. The fund is primarily comprised of government securities, investment-grade and high-yield corporate bonds, mortgage- and asset-backed securities from U.S. and foreign issuers.

Fund Highlights

- » Invests primarily in government securities, investment-grade and high-yield corporate bonds, mortgage- and asset-backed securities from U.S. and foreign issuers.
- » Shorter maturity typically means volatility is less than an intermediate bond fund.
- » Ideal for investors with a short to intermediate horizon who want exposure to the global investment universe.
- » No loads or 12b-1 fees (other fees apply).
- » The value of an investment will generally fall when interest rates rise.

Market

- » During the first quarter, we observed macro data prints showing stronger economic growth and higher inflation compared to market consensus expectations and labor market conditions remained resilient and supportive. The Federal Reserve (Fed) maintained their target range for policy rates during both January and March meetings and continue to signal an expectation for 75 basis points in cuts by the end of the calendar year. However, they did revise year-end growth and inflation expectations higher and increased their longer-term policy rate expectations modestly. U.S. Treasury yields increased during the quarter as market expectations converged with those of the Fed for aggregate reductions in policy rates by 2024 year-end.
- » Credit products in general outperformed U.S. Treasuries in the first quarter. Both investment-grade corporates and asset-back securities generated positive excess returns, despite record first quarter gross supply, which were digested well by the market. Higher-beta assets such as high-yield corporates and non-agency commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS) outperformed as investors continue reaching out for higher yields.

Outlook

- » We maintain an aggregate neutral duration positioning to preserve current yield levels. We continue to look for short-term opportunities to express our views on market mispricing of the path of future monetary policy rates. Aggregate risk positioning remains defensive as we continue to favor liquidity and higher-quality sector allocations. While we remain constructive, in our view, of credit fundamentals, we believe that a more defensive positioning is appropriate as credit premiums have decreased toward decade lows. This quarter, we opportunistically added in spaces like high yield and non-agency mortgages, and trimmed positions such as AAA-rated corporate collateralized loan obligations based on relative valuation.
